Evaluation Rubrics

Evaluation rubrics measure how well a skill is performed and not whether specific rules are satisfied. While an evaluation rubric may appear generic, it measures the core skills that can be shown in each presentation format.

You should use the evaluation rubrics with your parents, leaders, and other adults to develop your presentation skills before entering county, district or state Presentation Days. The rubrics work equally well for practice and competition performances. Since the skills being evaluated are the same in practice and competitions, your practices can be focused on what’s important to a good presentation.

At the practice, you and your “audience” should each fill out an evaluation rubric. Once completed, compare the results and work to improve your presentation skills. If you have a video camera available, you can videotape your presentation for review with the completed evaluation rubric. If a video camera is not available, try using a mirror to assist in evaluating your performance.

Practice with these evaluation rubrics because they are the same evaluation forms used when you are competing at presentation events. Compare completed evaluation rubrics with evaluation rubrics from previous presentations. Determine how you have improved since your last performance.

A good presentation performs well in all skill categories. Each major skill for the presentation format is listed in the left-hand column of the evaluation rubric. You earn points for each skill based on your performance of that skill. To find the overall quality of the presentation, total the skill scores. Remember that during competition you will be judged against your fellow participants.

Performing very well in a single category does little to raise the overall presentation performance. All presentations can be improved. Just because you think you have done your best, try to do even better. Even Level 4’s have room for improvement.

After you complete each competition, keep practicing to maintain your skills and performance quality. Performing at a high level in one competition does not mean that you will automatically perform at the same skill quality level at the next competition.
